Faulte to be Corrected. 'To speak well of the bridge that carries you safe over ' is a good maxim-we do not mean to disregard it. We only insist that the real bridge shall not be confounded with its shadow in the stream beneath. Our Adopted Citizens, as a class, are rotedly American in their principles and feelings; they have cast in heir lot with us; they wish to be with us, and of us, and ask only such treatment as will evince that our professions of riers against any one of them attaining the positime or under any circumstances whatever, Phese are but samples of many provisions alike red to, the Adopted Citizens might fairly expect that such measure of equality as is guaranteed them by our Federal and State Constitutions should be freely and fully accorded. It is not, and it can not be without a decided improvement in public sentiment on this subject. Let either party present a ticket containing a fair proportion of un mistakable Irish and German names, and those names, other things being equal, are certain to be scratched and to run far below the average of the ticket, unless held up by votes specially given them by their countrymen by birth. We are speaking of facts sufficiently notorious but not sufficiently considered. We call upon liberal men of all parties to see that there be no need of dwelling and insisting on them hereafter. We call upon the Whig party, for its own sake and the country's, to improve the season of calmness and reflection now likely to ensue. We have much to do, and something to learn or to unlearn. There should be a careful scratiny of our City Expenditures, to see if something may not be lopped off or pareddown, as we certainly think there might be. In every way, the present ser son of ascendancy should be improved to strength on ourselves for the severer trials visibly approach ing. That the Whig party and its aims are n regarded by a great majority of the hum ble and portionless with the rabid aversion and apprehension which not long since prevailed among them is a cheering fact; but there still remain prejudices to be dispelled and errors to be eradicated. BROOKLYS BRIDGE .- A correspondent calls our attention to the fact that some thirty years since a peron named Pope advocated the construction of a bridge between New York and Brooklyn, and published an octavo volume on the subject of Bridge Architecture. The idea of Mr Pope was to span the East River by a single sick! Our correspondent speaks in glowing terms of the advantages of a bridge uniting the tw cities into one, but observes that no bridge would be tolerated which was not high enough to be entirely out of the way of the sailing craft. In this we entirely concur, and never for a moment have entertained any des of interfering with the navigation of the river Senator, 350 ms; and the Whig State ticket 200. isfaction of announcing that the care of this road will have Chambers at for the first time, to day, and regu ir trips will, henceforward, be made from that pla to Poekskill by the ralls. The laying of this City tra from Thirty second at and Tenth avenue to the junc-tion of Chambers and Hudson ats, a distance of three miles, has been done in a very short space of time-less than two weeks, we believe. The next inconvenience to be removed is the want of a depot office, passenge rooms, &c. at the terminus in Chambers at. To day the matter of the injunction against the use of Hudson at for the running of the cars is to come up before the Supreme Court. We presume the decision is bardly a matter of question. And the restriction forced into the charter forbidding the running of a City train, like that I you lost or won. on the Harlem, will probably be as short-lived as the nue and cry about invasion of private rights, desecra tion of a beautiful atreet, peril of life, &c. raised by improvement from its march of "manifest destiny."
We do not know that the Company are in any w anxious for the repeal of this clause, but we know that many residents near the up-to wn steam terminus wou ike to enjoy the same facilities for getting to and from the lower part of the City as those do realding in the v inity of Fourth avenue and Twenty seventh at Why sould they not ?

1 happened incidentally to be present on Monday evening at Prof. Warner's first lesson, to a class of ledies and contiemen, on his new plan of teaching to sing at sight. I was struck with the extreme simplicity of the method and with its surprisingly rapid results. I would not have dreamed it possible that so much could have been accomplished at a single issues as I actually witnessed on this occasion. This system is obviously a grand improvement upon previous ones, and must assure both to its inventor and to the public very material advantages. A method of this kind whereby adult persons who have but little time to spare in musical studies has long been a desidersism, and, presuming that I might render an acceptable service to many by calling public attention to the realization of such a method in the present case, I have taken the liberty of sending you this communication. At the close of the lesson above referred to, Mr. Warner announced to the class that it would meet (at 413 Broadway) on Tureday evenings at 8 o'clock, commenceing with this evening.

ESUTAL BLOODSHED .- A bloody tragedy wa sacted at the corner of West Broadway and Chambers at last night about half-past 9 o'clock, in which one ife was lost. It seems that a stray ox had found hi way into Thomas at and being too old to steer his ourse out, and refusing to be either conzed or driven way, a horse and cart were procured, a strong rope cosed around the animal's horns, and a regular drag out attempted. The crowd collected by the fractaided materially to the darkness of the street, although their white eyes and white teeth entirely took the six if the dingy street lamps. The ox made the most dewent, and he reluctantly alld after them as far as the corner of West Broadway, where he laid down and fatly refused to budge an inch further. A knife was then procured and his throat was cut, much to the edi-fication of the crowd and the relief of the horse.
